UC Davis Remote Early Learning

The Early Childhood Laboratory (ECL) at the University of California, Davis is offering eight-week remote early learning programs starting Friday, January 14, 2021; perfect for parents, nannies, homeschool families, foster parents, and licensed-exempt care providers. Each small-group meeting is facilitated by a child development specialist from the Center for Child and Family Studies. Remote meetings take place over Zoom.

Family learning goals include exposure to developmentally appropriate curriculum, social connection, and parent education. Each session includes music and movement activities, storybook reading, and hands-on exploratory play. Parent and/or family caregiver participation is expected. Weekly play kits are provided and may be picked-up from the Early Childhood Laboratory (Davis, CA) or at a designated location in Sacramento, CA.

Weekly meetings are held on Fridays from 9:00-10:00 AM. Select from one of three cohorts:

- Toddler Family Group Time (2-3 years of age)
- Preschool Family Group Time (3-4 years of age)
- Prekindergarten Family Group Time (4-5 years of age)

Enrollment is limited to 10 children per cohort.

Real reviews from currently enrolled families...

As an adult, I like how the [facilitator] models the day's subject to the children, and helps explain how she does it afterwards. The books are wonderful and topical.

[I like] all of the interaction, and the easy activities that allow us to continue throughout the week.

I love the activities and the boxes provided. Our son loves participating.

Tuition: $125.00. Includes the cost of weekly play kit supplies and consumables.

The ECL remote learning program will follow the UC Davis academic year calendar; all university holidays are observed. The ECL program does not operate during the summer term.
